THE COURSE LEADER

DOUGLAS TINGEY, COUNSEL, BORDEN LADNER GERVAIS LLP

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

- THE COPENHAGEN ACCORD
- UPDATE ON CANADIAN LEGISLATION, REGULATIONS AND POLICY
- UPDATE ON THE UNITED STATES
- STRUCTURING EMISSIONS REDUCTION & REMOVAL PROJECTS
- DOING BUSINESS IN DEVELOPED AND DEVELOPING COUNTRIES
- SECTOR-SPECIFIC OPPORTUNITIES

Canada is inching closer to regulating greenhouse emissions nationally. A new international consensus is forming in the wake of the Copenhagen Accord, with the United States and China reaching an understanding on key issues. 2010 promises to be a year of continuing uncertainty in Canada and internationally, affecting the sorts of climate-change-related business opportunities available and the geographic location where opportunities arise. The more nimble and aware businesses will continue to make money.

DOUGLAS TINGEY

Douglas Tingey is counsel in BLG LLP's Calgary office. His practice focuses on energy, environmental and mining, particularly in the context of business solutions related to greenhouse gas emissions, renewable energy and climate change. Currently, Douglas acts for project proponents and financiers of Kyoto Protocol Clean Development Mechanism projects in Asia and, internationally, for parties to emissions-trading contracts. He also advises on issues relating to carbon finance and structuring of funds and investment vehicles intended to support the trading of carbon credits and the development of projects that create carbon credits. His Canadian clients who are active in pursuing solutions to climate change include carbon-offset and voluntary emissions-reduction project originators, an electric vehicle developer, a landfill technology company, an online carbon-neutrality facilitator, an organic fertilizer producer and a technology company working to provide solutions to carbon capture and sequestration.

ADAM CHAMBERLAIN

Adam Chamberlain is a Partner in BLG LLP's Toronto office and national leader of the firm's Climate Change Group. Since his call to the Ontario Bar in 1994, Adam has practised energy and environmental law with a focus on the development of infrastructure, such as energy, waste, wastewater and water-supply facilities. Adam provides advice to clients ranging from private power developers to public and private developers of waste and wastewater systems. He is the chair of the Ontario Energy Association's Environment Committee. Adam is certified by the Law Society of Upper Canada as a Specialist in Environmental Law.

JOEL JONES

Joel Jones is a corporate lawyer in the Calgary office of BLG LLP. Prior to his legal career, Joel worked as an equities trader in New York City, New York and a crude oil trading analyst in Calgary, Alberta. Joel has assisted clients with contractual and emission-trading issues, having represented clients in negotiations with carbon market brokers and verifiers, created both spot and forward purchase contracts for developers and purchasers of emission offsets, and conducted detailed analysis of verification documents prepared by the third-party auditors of emission offsets.

JULIO ARBOLEDA

Julio Arboleda is a partner in BLG LLP's Calgary office and is a member of the Corporate Commercial Group. Julio has handled domestic and international matters for energy clients and brings that perspective to the current dialogue on climate change.

MARC BABINSKI

Marc Babinski is a partner in the Montréal office of BLG LLP, and is the national leader of the firm's Innovation Sector Focus Group. Called to the Ontario Bar in 1989, Marc has worked extensively with early-stage companies and venture capitalists in the commercialization of new and innovative technologies and has witnessed first-hand the interplay of entrepreneurial effort, government incentive and market demand. Marc was called to the Bar in Québec in 2009.

CARLEIGH WHITMAN

Carleigh Whitman is a senior associate in the corporate/commercial group of BLG LLP's Vancouver office. Her practice is focused on environmental, energy and natural resources law. Carleigh provides advice to clients in matters related to environmental compliance, climate-change issues, contaminated-site issues and mitigation of environmental liabilities. She is also frequently involved with all aspects of electrical energy and gas-transmission-related projects.
